PROFESSIONAL PROFILE

PhD Research Scholar in Islamic Studies at Riphah International University, Islamabad, combining over ten years of classroom teaching experience with an active, internationally engaged research profile in Islamic bioethics, Maqasid al-Shari'ah, and the ethics of emerging technology. Academic training bridges classical scholarship (Dars-e-Nizami and Wifaq-ul-Madaris, both completed with distinction) with contemporary university-based research methodology, producing peer-reviewed publications in HEC-recognised and Scopus-indexed journals on cultured meat, imported meat, hadith studies, and comparative jurisprudence. Serves as a peer reviewer for the Indonesian Journal for Islamic Studies (IJFIS) and has been invited to present at the 2nd International Conference on Maqasid al-Wahy (MAFIS 2026) on AI governance in healthcare. Research vision centres on developing operational Maqasidi frameworks that allow Islamic jurisprudence to engage rigorously and constructively with contemporary scientific and technological questions, from biotechnology to artificial intelligence.
